Tourist Appreciates The Didsbury Roads

To the Mayor and Aldermen of the Town of Didsbury:—

Gentlemen,
Recently, while on a holiday tour, I was travelling from Edmonton to Calgary, and of course, passed through your town. I would like to express my appreciation of the way the oiled, gravelled highway runs through your town, and its splendid condition, evidence of the fact that Didsbury is a wide-awake little place, and gives its roads very excellent care. It was a pleasure to drive through your main street, which of course, is the highway, and of all the towns and villages I passed through, on that 200 odd mile stretch, the highway through your town was, in far and away, the best condition. Any other time that I may be passing your way, I shall make it a point to give Didsbury as much of my patronage as possible.

Thank you, gentlemen, for the comfortable ride through your town, may you prosper. I look forward to passing your way again, sometime in the future.

Yours very truly,
A TOURIST.

Peony Day

October 1st has been named Peony Day, and the Town and Rural Planning Board are using every effort to induce the people of the Province to plant a number of these hardy perennials, which produce one of our most attractive flowers.

A local branch of the Anglican Young Peoples Association was organized at a well-attended meeting of the younger members of St. Cyprian's Church, held at Mrs. H. D. Booker's on Friday evening last.

Meetings will be held twice a month, during the fall and winter season, and the next meeting takes place at the Lowrie home, on Friday evening.

The Snowstorm Delays Threshing

Alberta awoke on Tuesday morn, to find the first touch of winter in the air. Heavy rains on Monday evening all over the province, turned to snow and sleet by midnight, with driving northerly winds. The temperature hovered near freezing, during the night, and many points reported continued snow and freezing, early on Tuesday morning.

The storm will probably delay threshing for the rest of the week.

Henry Schneidmiller, aged 80 years, died at the home of his son, at Mayton, on Wednesday, September 17th. Mr. Schneidmiller, for some time, resided at Elkton, but for the last three years, lived at the home of his son. The funeral was held at Mayton.

The shooting season, so far, has not resulted in the hunters being able to bag many birds. Owing to there not having been much rain, the sloughs are mostly dry, and the ducks have been hard to find. However, the season for Hungarian partridge opens on October 1st, and they are reported to be plentiful, and no doubt, most of the nimrods will get out the old shooting iron, and try their luck in the stubble fields.

Mr. Russell Berscht made a bus-trip to Calgary, Wednesday.

Evensong and sermon, at St. Cyprian's Church, Didsbury, at 7-30 p.m.

Mr. Henry Cuffling, of Turner Valley, is visiting his brother, Mr. W. E. Cuffling.

Special Harvest Home services were held at Westcott, Sunday last, Rev. A. E. Hayes preached the sermon, and Knox Church Choir contributed special music.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, of Morrin, Alberta, and Mr. Ernie Robinson, of Winnipeg, were visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Thoman last week.

Special Rally Day services will be observed, morning and evening, at Knox Church, Didsbury, also at Westerdale and Westcott, at the usual hours.

For killing a female moose, and calf moose, unlawfully, Arthur and Charles Phillips, of James River, received a stiff fine, when arraigned before F. W. Cameron, J. P., at Bowden. Three other residents of the same district, were each fined $10.00 and costs, for having game in their possession, knowing that it was unlawfully killed. The cases were investigated by the Alberta Provincial Police.

Coming!—According to the last words received from the Calgary Salvation Army Band, they will be in attendance at the Evangelical Church, next Sunday evening, with about twenty or more instruments. A mixed program of Gospel music, song, and speech, is arranged for, under supervision of the local pastor, Rev. H. E. Roppel. This will be a treat for those who like to hear the Gospel in song. The service, last Sunday night, will be well, and favorably remembered by many. The male quintette presented a very fine Gospel, in both song and speech. Very impressive, was the fact of their earnest and serious manner, coupled with the inward joy of salvation, bubbling over with song. On their arrival, last Sunday evening, the quintette partook of supper at the Evangelical parsonage, where their fellowship was much enjoyed. After the service, they were invited to the Berscht home for lunch, where another hour of happy fellowship was spent. The local saxophone quartette, assisted by the church organ, and piano, added much to the success of this Rally occasion.

Interesting Expedition

British Scientist To Explore 'Old Hunting Ground In Turkestan

Sir Aurel Stein left Simla, recently, on what may prove to be as wonderful an expedition as any of those which this savant has already to his credit. His ultimate objective is his old hunting ground, the Lop Desert, in Chinese Turkestan, south-east of the Tien Shan range, but en route he has mapped out a fascinating programme. The expedition has been made possible by the generosity of Harvard University, which has contributed £20,000, and the British Museum, which is contributing £2,000 annually for three years.

Vaccine For Leprosy

Japanese Doctor Cultivates Bacillus Which May Form Protection For Dread Disease

Dr. Kiyoshi Shiga, director of the government hospital at Seoul, Korea, announced recently that he had succeeded in artificially cultivating the bacillus of leprosy. The discovery is regarded as of the greatest importance for the future development of methods for preventing as well as for treating leprosy.

The cultivation of the leprosy bacillus is the result of two years of experimentation on the part of Dr. Shiga. He has recently been able to inject the bacillus into moles, with the result that within two months the moles developed symptoms of leprosy. His experiments with mice failed at first, but later experiments with mice deficient in certain vitamins were entirely successful.

"Although my experiments are not completed," Dr. Shiga said in an interview, "I have no doubt that within the near future, as we are able to experiment with other animals, we shall be able to develop means of protection against leprosy by vaccination, as well as to discover suitable means of treatment."

As a young man Dr. Shiga studied in Germany and was later sent on government work to India, Italy and England. He was Professor of Bacteriology at Keio University until his appointment as head of the government hospital at Seoul, in 1920.

This is not the first time the bacillus of leprosy has been artificially cultivated, according to Dr. Victor G. Heiser, of the Rockefeller Foundation. It was cultivated by Dr. Moses Clegg, at the leper colony in the Philippines. Last year it was again cultivated artificially by Dr. E. Walker, of the Hooper Institute of San Francisco. About ten years ago a Russian scientist, Kodroski, succeeded in growing it artificially.

"However," added Dr. Heiser, himself an authority on leprology, "Dr. Shiga, who is an eminent Japanese professor, believes that he has discovered a more positive method of artificial cultivation, one more certain to produce the desired results. The previous methods have not been accepted by scientists as reliable. The artificial growth of a bacillus opens the way to the possibility of developing a vaccine for the prevention and treatment of that particular disease. But it is only a hope."

The leprosy germ was originally discovered in 1871 by Dr. G. A. Armauer Hansen, a Norwegian scientist.

It was reported from Vienna, in April, that Dr. Hermann Dostal had succeeded in isolating the leprosy bacillus and had produced a serum that was giving excellent results.

Ban On Immigrants

Permits to bring in relatives from Central Europe will no longer be available to former inhabitants of that region who are now settled here, according to the interpretation given by those interested in Toronto to a circular sent to officials by the Dominion minister of immigration. The circular announces the striking out of the clause of the order-in-council under which permits have been secured since the war.

4 Years without HEADACHE

How do you deal with headaches? Do you just take something to deaden the pain without getting rid of the trouble which causes the pain? Thousands do, despite the medical profession's warning cry of "DON'T!"

Such makeshift methods simply suppress the symptoms of headaches. They merely numb the nerves and leave the underlying cause to look after itself. And it only obtains a firmer grip. Headaches can generally be traced to a disordered stomach and to the unsuppressed retention in the system of stagnating waste material which poisons the blood. Remove these poisons—prevent them forming again—and you'll never have to worry any more. And that is just how Kruschen Salts bring swift and lasting relief from headaches. Kruschen Salts aid Nature to cleanse your body completely of all clogging waste matter.

"For many years I suffered from severe headaches almost daily. I started taking the small dose (of Kruschen) a matter of four years ago, and I can honestly say I have never had a headache since."—(Mrs. M. W.)

High School Correspondence Courses For Saskatchewan

Premier Anderson Implements Pledge To Extend Higher Educational Facilities To Rural Communities

Implementing his pledge to extend high school facilities to boys and girls in rural communities of Saskatchewan, Premier J. T. M. Anderson, as Minister of Education, has announced that, beginning in September, high school correspondence courses in Grades 9, 10 and 11 will be inaugurated by the Department of Education. These courses, while not intended to interfere in any way with existing school arrangements, are being instituted for the benefit of Saskatchewan boys and girls who have not reasonable opportunities of obtaining a high school education in their own districts.

Optional Subjects

The courses will provide full preparation of students for Junior Matriculation and Entrance to Normal Schools. In addition to all compulsory subjects of Grades IX, X and XI, the Department is offering many optional subjects such as Agriculture, Chemistry, Physics, Home Economics, Latin and French.

Pupils eligible for these courses must be residents of Saskatchewan and have Grade VIII or equivalent standing. The course in Grades IX and X are offered to pupils who live outside an organized school district or who cannot attend school owing to some physical disability; to pupils who live within a school district but for some valid reason cannot attend school; to pupils who are in attendance at a one-room rural school, such pupils to work under the supervision of the local teacher who may refer questions to the Director in charge. The Grade XI course is restricted to pupils who live more than four miles from a school where Grade XI is being taught. A nominal fee will be charged for all the courses except those taken under supervision of the local teacher.

This new education activity in Saskatchewan is under charge of the Premier J. T. M. Anderson, Minister of Education, who announces a policy of High School Courses by Correspondence.

Director of High School Correspondence Instruction, Department of Education, Regina, from whom application forms and terms of enrolment may be obtained.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

As those two in the doorway moved out of the mirror's line of reflection, Grandma lifted compassionate eyes to Jimmy Bennett. She could not speak. Her throat felt parched. Anything she might say would seem inadequate; so it was in silence Jim arose and moved dazedly toward the door that led to the room beyond.

"I—I'll get out the back way," he managed to say huskily. "You tell her that George K. sent for me. Tell her anything you're a mind to—except the truth. I'll be all right after a minute. . . . Don't worry. . . . I'll . . ."

But he was too late. Charmian was back, her eyes still shining as she glanced in bewilderment from Grandma's troubled countenance to the grim face of her old playmate.

"Where are you going?" she began, puzzled. "Come back, Jim. Sit down. I've got some news for you. What makes you act so queer?" Then light broke in upon her and she cried: "Oh, look here! Did—did you see that idiot kiss me?"

Her cheeks flamed, but Jim still stood in the doorway. He might have been a statue. He didn't speak; but Grandma answered shakily: "In—in the mirror, dearie. I didn't know you cared that way—either of you. I thought . . ."

"I see," said Charmian. She laughed, and going close to Jim, looked at him: "And you thought, too, Jim? Really, I don't know that I blame you. It must have looked that way. That kiss—"

"You don't have to explain a kiss like that, Charmian," Jim broke in gruffly. "It spoke for itself. I wish you happiness, of course; but now. . . . Uncle George is waiting for me, and . . ."

The girl drew an exasperated breath.

"Let him wait," she responded. "You shan't go one step, Jim Bennett, till I've made you and Grandma understand this thing. Sit down."

That kiss was—well, sort of a vicarious kiss, you understand. It was a kiss by proxy, so to speak. It wasn't me John Carter was really kissing, but a girl who's crossing the ocean now to come to him—a girl he's adored for ages, though he was too proud to say so—nothing to offer her and—Oh, you know that foolish line of thought.

"It's a long story, too long to go into now; but anyhow, he wrote to her after the old doctor died and he thought he'd be able to get married. His letter came back unclaimed. Then he found from a friend that she had gone abroad. He wrote in care of the American Express, and that letter came back, too. Then he tried Paris, and after following her all round Europe, the letter reached her in London, and she cabled. It was that message he brought for me to see. She sailed at once. Told him to meet her at the dock with a marriage license! Do you wonder the poor boy was a little off his head? He's been half crazy with anxiety, and—well," said Charmian, a smile curving her lips, "he just naturally had to kiss some one, didn't he?—and I was handy."

"Handy!" echoed Jim Bennett, staring. "Are you trying to tell me that if he'd run into Lizzie Baker he'd have kissed her?"

This bit of humor was an heroic effort on Jim's part to clear the atmosphere. In reality, it was difficult for him to speak. But his words were rewarded by a smile from Grandma and a dimple from Charmian as she endeavored to reply sedately: "I'm not sure that he wouldn't have, though you know, Jim, I've been a—sister to him."

"I shouldn't hardly have thought it from the looks of things," said Grandma with unintentional humor. "At one time I was pretty sure we were going to keep him in the family. How long have you known about this girl, dearie? Why didn't you tell me?"

"If I'd known you were thinking what all the Wickfield busybodies were thinking," replied Charmian, "I would have told; but it was a confidence, and I saw no reason to violate it. John is terribly close-mouthed about his own affairs, and he didn't know that the girl loved him. I think it was an immense relief to him to talk to me, though it's my private opinion that he'd never have done so if he hadn't suspected what Wickfield was saying about—us."

"Did he think you were maybe getting to love him?" asked Grandma innocently.

Charmian flushed.

"He's not so conceited as all that; but he was quite right to let me know that his heart's in the highlands. He told me ages ago. In fact, he tried to tell me the day that Moore child ruptured her appendix, but we were interrupted, and a week or so went by before he had another chance. I suppose all Wickfield thinks that he broke my heart. Sometimes I wonder why he didn't. He's tremendously easy to love."

"Are you sure that useful organ is intact?" Jim questioned.

"Intact, but battered," confessed Charmian. "Jim, where are you staying? You can put up here as well as not."

"I'm at Uncle George's—left the train at Eastboro and came over by automobile, just for the fun of surprising everybody. Aunt Salina nearly passed out when I walked in at dinner time. I told her I wouldn't be back till after supper—thought I hinted hard enough I might worm an invitation out of somebody."

"You don't ever need to hint for an invitation here," said Grandma. "You're welcome to invite yourself any time you want to. I've missed you like anything, Jimmy, and I presume Charmian has, too, though maybe she's too bashful to let you think so."

"She means 'maidenly,' Jim," laughed Charmian, "and I fear I'm not even that. I've missed you abominably, and don't mind saying so to your face. But if you're to stay to supper you'll have to help to get it; and anyway, Grandma has talked enough for one while. You close your eyes, Grandma, and get a cat-nap while we rustle the repast."

The young man arose with alacrity, and Grandma said: "You get something good and hearty, Charmian. Jim's hungry after his long journey. Maybe he'd relish one of your nice omelets with bacon. And you'd better mix up some biscuits while you're about it."

"You're nothing if not hospitable, Grandma," smiled the guest, "but I refuse to be treated as company."

He stooped to take the old lady's hand in a gentle grip that said, "All's well after all," before he followed Charmian to the kitchen.

"This looks like an ark," he commented, glancing about appraisingly. "I suppose I've become accustomed to kitchenettes; and in these days when most of us don't keep a lot of help, I'll admit that they save steps. Come here to the window, Charmian. I want to look at you."

She smiled and answered: "Are you trying to detect gray hairs? It's a wonder I haven't got some, Jimmy." Her face clouded suddenly. "Did Uncle George tell you about . . ."

"About what?" he prodded as she hesitated.

Charmian shivered. It had swept over her achingly that tomorrow she would be getting supper in a kitchen belonging to some stranger. She lifted her face, and Jim sensed the unshed tears behind her lashes.

"I've had to part with the old house, Jim. It was more than I could swing—alone. I sign the papers tomorrow morning at the bank. Don't tell Grandma tonight. She knows it's coming, but not when. It's silly to care so much for a house, isn't it? And yet—"

She turned abruptly away, did something unnecessary to the stove, and came back with a smile on her lips that twisted Jimmy's heart.

"I—I'm sorry, Charmian," he began, "but it's the—"

"Now don't you tell me it's sensible!" she cried, a sob in her voice. "Everybody tells me that—even Grandma. I know it's sensible, but—but . . ."

"I wasn't going to call it sensible," said Jim patiently. "I'm not even sure it is, when it hurts you so. I was going to say that it's the way life usually treats us—lets us set our hearts on something, and then, when it seems as if we couldn't live without it, takes it away. Who's buying the old place, Charmian?"

"I don't know even that—some stranger who took a fancy to the house and asked at the bank if it could be bought. Uncle George arranged it. And we'll still have the law office, Jim. We'll live there and . . ."

She explained their plans while Jim, staring out of the window toward the orchard, listened thoughtfully.

"It was the dear old doctor's scheme," said Charmian, "and once we get used to the change it will be all right. Now let's cheer up. It's hateful of me to thrust my burdens on you as soon as you arrive; and we must give Grandma a good time. She hasn't looked so happy for days and days, Jim. Forget my troubles now, and pare these apples. I'm going to make Dutch apple cake instead of biscuits because you like it. Wait till I tie this apron round you, please. That's a dandy suit, and you mustn't get it spotted the first thing."

Jim's familiar smile came back as she tied him into the blue apron. He said: "I'm glad the suit has made a hit. Mother thought I'd taken leave of my senses when she came across the bill in a coat pocket. I told her that considering the wealth she was squandering on a fruit ranch, she couldn't consistently complain of my extravagance! Then Aunt Sophie came in and took my side. Aunt Sophie's a peach. She's like my mother—well, with all the angles sand-papery. Do you catch my meaning? You'd love her, anyway. It was worth being exiled all this time to find an aunt like that, believe me."

ENO'S "FRUIT SALT"

The Safest, Surest Way To Health

The daily dash of ENO in a glass of water every morning is the safest, surest way to inner cleanliness. And to be inwardly clean is to be healthy.

ENO'S "Fruit Salt" is a delicious health beverage that tones and sweetens the entire system. For constipation, acid stomach, fatigue and biliousness it is without equal.

But remember, only ENO can give ENO results.

"Was that all you found in California?" queried Charmian as she measured flour into a blue bowl. She was remembering the "girl" mentioned in Lizzie Baker's letter, but Jim answered in all seriousness: (To Be Continued).

Wool Warehouse Destroyed

Half a Million Dollar Loss Occasioned By Fire At Weston

Damage estimated at $500,000 was caused by a fire which destroyed the building of the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers, near Weston, Ont. Charred and crumpled walls containing 3,000,000 pounds of water-soaked wool were all that remained of the structure after firemen had finally conquered the blaze. Officials were at a loss to determine the cause of the fire.

When Pain Comes

What many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali in water will neutralize instantly many times as much acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go get a small bottle to try.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any drugstore.

UNIFORM LAWS FOR PROVINCES WILL BE SOUGHT

Renewed efforts to secure inter-provincial uniformity in laws are expected to follow the change in government at Ottawa.

Some progress in this direction has been made during the past two years, but the successes achieved cover a very minor fraction of the laws in which uniformity is considered desirable.

Property, company, insurance laws, motor laws, compensation acts and social legislation are all within the scope of statutes in which uniformity is as desirable, it is held, in the interests of the public as of parties immediately concerned.

With respect to civil law, Quebec, under the Code Napoleon, has always presented difficulties to national uniformity. Law officers who have studied the subject, however, believe that a great deal more in that direction may be achieved. It is being suggested that when progress with Quebec has been exhausted the other provinces continue their efforts in the same direction.

Uniformity will, it is claimed, very materially reduce litigation, simplify the conduct of inter-provincial business and result in important savings in legal fees by the public.

PRICE FIXING NOT A SUCCESS

The European cartel for maintaining an arbitrary price for steel has been abandoned. The plan failed. Some years ago our government was trying to fix a price for silver. More recently the British were trying to control rubber. In Brazil it was coffee, in Cuba, sugar, and in Canada the wheat market. Our producers tried to hold the price of copper and the farm board went into wheat and cotton.

None of these efforts has been a success. It is not possible to repeal the law of supply and demand, of cause and effect, or of action and reaction. Value is a matter of opinion. An act of congress has small jurisdiction over what men think.

When the consumer buys a product it goes out of the market and disappears. When private or public agents buy to fix an arbitrary price the product is still in the market, every consumer knows it and waits for the resale. The price can be held only as a local or temporary expedient which usually makes matters worse. But because all of us are bigger than some of us, not even the United States treasury is powerful enough to put an arbitrary price on the great world staples with any permanent success.

The above is from the pen of Calvin Coolidge.—Ex.

Town Planning In Alberta

Being a Series of Short Articles Explanatory of the Provisions Of The Alberta Town Planning Act, and Regulations Thereunder.

By
HORACE L. SEYMOUR,
Provincial Director of Town Planning.

Article 4.
Housing.

One of the principal objects of town planning is to provide desirable homesites. Subdivision regulations and provisions of the Town Planning Act, referred to in previous articles, have been drafted to accomplish this end. A general regulation, is that lots for residential purposes shall be at least, 50 feet wide, at least, 100 feet deep, with a minimum area of 5,000 square feet.

In a new subdivision, stores, and similar structures, cannot be erected in a residential district, or zone; adequate streets and lanes are to be provided. The thoughtless, and indiscriminate placing of houses on unsubdivided lands, without reference to existing, or future development, can now be curbed, but where there exists a proper community spirit, such infractions of the "laws" of common-sense, of community economy, will probably not be considered by intending purchasers, or sanctioned by the owner. If, however, through thoughtlessness, through ignorance of existing legislation, or regulations, these infractions occur, it may mean considerable extra expense to the owner to have necessary surveys subsequently made, or in other cases, to move buildings recently erected.

In general, residences are to be erected but one to a lot, that lot forming part of a registered subdivision. Any further information may be obtained by writing to the office of the Director of Town Planning, Parliament Buildings, Edmonton.

WELL NAMED WISE

Dr. H. W. Wood has again demonstrated his balanced judgment in giving no support to the movement in Saskatchewan for a compulsory pool. The hope of the Saskatchewan farmers that this might become a legislative measure has met with some rebuff from the government of that province. Many private members are said to be opposed to the plan. It receives no co-operation from the heads of the Alberta Wheat Pool, and their failure to attend the compulsory Wheat Pool parley at Regina is proof of their attitude.

Dr. Wood gives his cheering assurance that regardless of what Saskatchewan may see fit to do, the Alberta Pool proposes to go ahead with its marketing on old lines, meeting adverse conditions as they may arise.

In this he doubtless has a one hundred per cent. backing from all Pool members.

PROPOSE WAR-TIME SCHEME TO MARKET CANADIAN WHEAT

Advices from London indicate that the Labor Government is devoting itself to development of the Thomas plan for the bulk purchasing of Canadian grain and wool, meat and dairy products from this and other sections of the Empire.

The British Government intends to have the proposal worked out for submission to the Economic Conference which meets in London next month.

British comment evidences a growing recognition of the fact that the Dominions insist upon mutuality of preferences within the Empire. The Macdonald Government, and particularly Chancellor Snowden, stands rather uncompromisingly against taxes on food in Britain and the Thomas plan is conceived as an alternative which may give the Dominions the advantage sought in return for preferences on all manufactured goods entering the Dominions.

ECONOMY

THE BACON CYCLE

"The production of hogs in Canada at the present time is at the low point in the production cycle," state the Live Stock Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. Current supplies, and supplies in prospect are not more than sufficient to meet a very active home demand. It is noted, however, that there has been very little falling off in hog production, but rather that supplies have failed to keep pace with a growing domestic consumption. There are signs at the present time that the coming year may show a substantial increase in bacon production while at the same time the re-adjustment of prices may result in the resumption of bacon exports.

Getting Back To Nature

Summer vacation days are practically over and boys and girls, youths and maidens are getting back to their school books and studies while father returns to his office or store and mother to her varied household activities. If these vacation days have been sanely and sensibly spent the result is that those who have enjoyed them go back to their studies or work refreshed in mind and body, physically strengthened, more alert mentally, and in every way better fitted for the duties that lie ahead, with stored up energy from the life-giving rays of the sun to carry them through the shorter winter days.

A well spent vacation, however, means more than this, especially for the young. There is no period, no one month or day throughout life when our education is complete, when we are not learning something, absorbing some new and possibly lasting impressions, storing up additional information, gaining in knowledge. Because for a few weeks or months we abandon the school room and text books for a camp in the woods, or a motor trip, or a sojourn in the mountains or by the sea, does not imply that during such time our education comes to a full stop. Quite the reverse is true.

Indeed, living for a few weeks in a summer cottage by one of our lovely western prairie lakes, boating, bathing, fishing, rambling through the woods by day, watching the glorious sunsets and beautiful dawns, lazily contemplating the star-besprinkled sky at night, living the simple life, both in food and dress, one is inclined seriously to question whether in this intense, highly organized, mechanical age, we are not beginning to lose some of the best things in life, and to substitute the artificial for the natural.

For example, are not those responsible for our educational system, the training of our boys and girls for their life work, not missing something very vital and important in their programme of studies? Nowadays we take a boy or girl at the age of six or seven and introduce him and her to the great realm of books. Thus early in life we open up a new world to them, and from that time onward the tendency is for them to turn only to books, or to their teachers using text books, as the source of all information. Boys and girls may thus become great students of books, but they lose the greater pleasures, the romance, the fine inspiration which comes from the study and observation of nature itself and the wonderful works of nature.

The writer confesses that he always liked the ideas and ideals and programme back of the Boy Scouts and Girl Guides movements, the training of youth in the art of close observation, of learning by doing. We like the idea of our Canadian boys and girls obtaining a knowledge of our flowers and trees, our birds and beetles and flies, yes, even our weeds, from nature itself rather than from books; we like them to recognize the evening star, and the dipper, and the north star in the great space of the sky overhead rather than in a diagram in a text book; we prefer they should know how to build a trustworthy footbridge over a stream they may have to cross rather than be forced to go miles out of their way to find a concrete or steel structure; we like to see them capable of starting a camp fire in a few minutes, cooking their own food, setting up a tent, making a bed with boughs, leaves and a blanket or two; we admire a boy using an axe expertly.

Book knowledge should come; it must come; it is absolutely essential. But are we not making the mistake of relying almost wholly on books in our task of education and neglecting the great outdoors and the wonderful works which nature alone presents to us? Is not the early education of our Canadian boys and girls too academic in character, and not quite practical enough?

Nature study in all its many branches is much more interesting to the average boy and girl in their earlier years than is book study, and the lessons they learn from nature will remain with them when much book learning is forgotten. Furthermore, the traits and characteristics developed through close contact with, and study of nature's own methods, are traits and characteristics which create habits of observation and initiative that will be found invaluable in life, irrespective of the profession or business in which one may ultimately engage, and they are real assets which are not so easily found within the covers of books.

Canada is a land of beauty and variety. Nature has been bountiful in her gifts to the Canadian people. It behooves us, therefore, to give our boys and girls every opportunity to observe, study and appreciate these beauties, to live and learn among and from them. Vacation days are happy days, but they are also, in the writer's humble opinion, among the most valuable of all our days of learning. There should be a way found to fit them more closely into our educational system.

Egg Laying Record

The Oyster Holds Undisputed Claim To This Honor

The world's egg-laying record, 25,000 in one second, 115,000,000 in 70 minutes, 690,000,000 in a year—all by a female oyster—is claimed by the oyster.

The feat was reported to a gathering of biologists, of international repute, civic, state and federal health authorities and shellfish commissioners from several states at the convention of the National Association of Shellfish Commissioners and the Oyster Growers and Dealers Association of North America, Inc.

Menace To Motoring Public

Outworn Car Is Becoming Peril On Modern Highway

The "One Horse Shay," made famous by Oliver Wendell Holmes, ran its course and then suddenly disappeared into atomic dust. Old cars are not as successfully disposed of, and unless some used-car dealer wins the gratitude of the motoring public by committing them to the junk pile they continue to obstruct traffic on the highway until they collapse in a heap of scrap at the roadside.

There is nothing romantic, uncanny or even interesting about the final chapter of the outworn car. Too often there is tragedy in the concluding lives.

The old, out-of-date, decrepit gas wagon is more than a problem—it's a peril.

It now costs $25 in Old London to impede traffic by trying to operate an old car that should be on the junk heap. Public opinion will eventually ban such vehicles from our busiest highways, for they are certainly a menace not only to the owners, but to the motoring public as well.

Chain Letters

New Flood Of Chain Letters Cause Trouble To Postal Authorities

London postal authorities are again fighting a new flood of chain letters. The latest of them begins with the names of Charles Lindbergh, Colonel Dawes, Bernard Shaw, John Barrymore, Dorothy Dix and Ramsay MacDonald. By the letter, one is given to understand that all these celebrated people have written nine letters to nine other people. A subtle threat of sudden death to anyone who fails to carry on the chain is hidden in the wording.

Bright Eyes, Rosy Cheeks

The Birthright Of Every Girl

Dull eyes mean misery and weakness—a sure sign of a bloodless condition. Anaemic girls and women have dull, heavy eyes with dark lines underneath. The bright eyed girl or woman is always happy and well.

There is one way to make the eyes bright—to bring the glow of health to pale cheeks—that is to invigorate the body with new blood—rich, red health-giving blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do this and they do it well. Concerning them Mrs. Robert Devitt, Brougham, Ont., says: "My daughter became so ill and nervous we had to take her out of school. She was pale and thin; her eyes were dull and the least exertion upset her. I began giving her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and in less than six months you would not know her. She gained in weight and strength and is now the picture of health."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Pilot In Northern Alberta Flew 1,500 Miles In One Day, Making Five Stops

The latest of many air records in Northern Alberta was recorded the other day when Captain W. N. Sherlock, of Commercial Airways, flew 1,500 miles one day, making five stops en route for the delivery of letters and packages. The trip was made from Fort McMurray to Aklavik, with stops at Fort Resolution, Fort Simpson, Fort Norman, Fort McPherson and Arctic Red River. Captain Sherlock hails from Cumberland, England, and is a former member of the R.A.F.

Miller's Worm Powders prove their value. They do not cause any violent disturbances in the stomach, any pain or griping, but do their work quietly and painlessly, so that the destruction of the worms is imperceptible. Yet they are thorough, and from the first dose there is improvement in the condition of the sufferer and a cessation of manifestations of internal trouble.

British Columbia Minerals

A report of Hon. W. A. Mackenzie, Minister of Mines in British Columbia, shows an increased quantity production in the aggregate of minerals and metals, though the dollar gross value dropped from $34,122,722 in the first half of 1929 to $29,090,487 for the half year of 1930.

British Rule In India

What England Has Done and Can Do For People Of That Country

"Downeaster" writes as follows in the Canadian Churchman: The achievements of England in India during the last century, I think I may safely say, constitute one of the brightest pages in the history of our race and Empire. Like all human records, it is not of course without its blots. But I think it has on the whole fully justified Macaulay's closing words in his celebrated essay on the character and work of Lord Clive, "If in India the yoke of foreign masters, elsewhere the heaviest of all yokes, has been found lighter than that of any native dynasty, if that gang of public robbers that once spread terror through the whole plain of Bengal has been succeeded by a body of functionaries not more highly distinguished by ability and diligence than by integrity, disinterestedness and public spirit, if we see men like Munro, Elphinstone and Metcalfe, after leading victorious armies and deposing kings, return proud of their honorable poverty, the praise is in no small measure due to Clive." But to me, and I believe to the great majority of Britons throughout the Empire, England's noblest achievements in this connection will be the gradual fitting of the inhabitants of the Indian peninsula for self-government and should the event demand it, ultimate independence.

No Reciprocity

British War Veterans Will Have To Pay $10 Visa Fee

Eighteen British war veterans, coming to the United States for a convention next month, will be required to pay the usual $10 visa fee each, despite Great Britain's courtesy a few years ago in admitting several hundred American Legionnaires without charge.

Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador, was informed in a note made public recently that the State Department regretted its inability to comply with his request for a blanket visa, but that the law gave it no alternative. A formal reciprocal agreement would be necessary, the State Department informed Sir Ronald.

Periodic Health Examinations In The Future To Guard Against Unnecessary Illness

(By John Burke Ingram)

Should doctors be paid for healing their patients? To this seemingly foolish question a friend of mine replied: "Certainly! That's what doctors are for."

Is it?
Do you remember the old, old fable about the way the Chinese pay their physicians? Only when the patient is well is the doctor paid. Thus the interests of patient and doctor are identical. Smart people, those Chinese! Today we are trying to work out some such system in the name of "Preventive Medicine." Today the attitude of the doctor towards disease is changing.

Vaccination against smallpox started that change. Before vaccination, doctors existed solely to cure. With the coming of vaccination they began to prevent illness.

Vaccination has been followed by similar discoveries. "It is now possible to 'vaccinate' (the word while inexact medically, is correct in general sense) against diphtheria, typhoid fever, scarlet fever, rabies, infantile paralysis and other diseases. Almost every year sees another one or two additions to the list of preventable diseases. And year by year the falling death-rate from tuberculosis proves that preventive medicine is effective in combating many of those ills of the flesh against which no specific has yet been discovered.

The most significant recognition that has been given to the principle of preventive medicine has been the organization of public health departments. The function of every public health official is not to cure disease, but to keep the public healthy. And more and more this is becoming the function of the practicing physician, too.

What is to happen to the average doctor when—and if—we reach the Aesculapian utopia in which there are no sick people left to heal? This state, thinks Dr. Gordon Bates who writes on the question in the current issue of the Canadian Public Health Journal, will be a most happy one. For instead of having thousands of sick to heal, he will have millions of well folk to keep well! Truly a more congenial, as well as a more profitable state of affairs to both doctor and patient.

Half of all the illness in Canada is preventable, he says, "and over 30 per cent. of our deaths are postponable." The direct cost of illness he places—from conservative estimates made by public health officials from coast to coast—at $300,000,000.

He visualizes a day when a mother, instead of philosophically hoping that her offspring will have their share of children's diseases early and get them over with, will consult her family physician and arrange with him to have the children immunized against these diseases so that they won't have them at all. A much less expensive, less annoying, less dangerous procedure. He points out that though Canada has annually about 1,200 deaths from diphtheria, and 13,500 cases of it, preventive medicine could cut the toll of this disease by 95%—and that it fails to do so largely through ignorance or neglect of parents, since diphtheria is principally a disease of childhood.

"But what other phases are there to the adoption of preventive medicine by the general practitioner?"

"Is this place healthy?"
"Rather! I couldn't walk when I came here."
"Did you have rheumatism?"
"No, I was born here."—Buen Humor, Madrid.

W. N. U. 1853

Dr. Bates asks. "One thinks immediately of the periodic health examination idea.

"Many illnesses which have resulted in death might have been prevented had the physician had the opportunity of acting in the incipient stage of the disease in question. An infected tooth or tonsil may spell disease or death; cancer, syphilis, tuberculosis may result in death because of neglect when the symptoms are slight, and these are only examples of conditions in which at present the physician too frequently has not the opportunity of exercising a preventive function. Over-eating, over-drinking, overwork, under-exercise, worry may present problems just as serious but the culprit seldom consults his medical adviser until Nemesis is upon him. The effect on sickness and death rates is obvious.

A year ago through the co-operation of the Canadian Medical Association and the Dominion Department of Health a standard form, designed for the use of the physician in the examination of the apparently well, was forwarded to every physician in Canada.

"The case for periodic health examination is so strong that unquestionably this procedure will form a most important part of the armamentarium of the general practitioner of the future to the end that unnecessary illness may be prevented.

"Important steps in the direction of making the application of periodic health examination practical have already been taken. A number of the Canadian life insurance companies have entered into a co-operative scheme with the Canadian Medical Association whereby certain policyholders will have made available for them free medical examination by their own family doctors, or at least by doctors of their own choice, the life insurance companies paying the bill."

So the life insurance companies find periodic health examination such good business, as a life-prolonger for heavy policyholders, that they are willing to pay for it!

Which makes it look as though it were a good thing for one to walk around to his family physician and say: "Doctor, look me over now and on every birthday from now on. Practice preventive medicine on me. Peep at my innards with x-rays. Ask me leading questions about my way of living. I don't want to get sick, and I'll pay you handsomely to keep me well!" Clever people, those Chinese!

Value Of Agricultural Fairs

Postmaster-General Believes They Teach Profitable Lessons

The Minister of Agriculture, Hon. Robert Weir, intends to assume a policy that will render justice to all parts of the country in aiding farmers. Hon. Arthur Sauve, Postmaster-General, said in an address given at the Three Rivers exhibition. Mr. Sauve discussed the value of agricultural fairs which taught sane and profitable lessons showing the possibilities of agriculture, which, he said, was the basis of national prosperity. Reviewing the situation facing the new administration Mr. Sauve said: "Our problems are many, and it is important that national education should be carried on in such a manner as to assure that all portions of the population contribute to their solution.

"We are experiencing an alarming crisis, which everybody will admit. Everyone must help. The governing bodies must play their part properly."

Montreal Unemployed

Montreal at present has between 21,000 and 23,000 unemployed, with another 10,000 to 15,000 working but two or three days a week, according to reports from Labor unions reaching the city hall. It was announced by Ald. Alfred Mathieu, member of the executive committee. The information will be passed on to Hon. Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labor, who is compiling data on unemployment throughout the country.

Growing Respect and Good Will That Mark Relations Between Canada and the United States

Beef Grading Policy

Attracting Attention On the British Market, Report Shows

The beef grading policy of the Dominion livestock branch is not only providing a real service to the Canadian consumer and producer in clearly identifying the true qualities of beef, but is also attracting attention in the British markets, reports show.

The Imperial Food Journal, a recognized authority on market conditions in the Old Country, says: "The introduction of beef grading in Canada, whereby the two top grades are marked for the information and protection of the public, is doing much to strengthen the demand for the better qualities of beef. This should tend to promote the raising of better grades of cattle and the finishing of animals.

Cattle For Old Country

Shipment Made During August Was Just For Experiment

On August 21st, for the first time in over three years, a shipment of Canadian cattle left Canada for the United Kingdom. This shipment of forty head is an experiment that will be watched with interest by western, as by eastern, cattle raisers and shippers. Now that the United States border has been closed to our animals, it becomes all the more desirable to revive the lapsed business with the Mother Country. It is prophesied that, if shipping facilities can be arranged, sixty thousand head can be sent across the Atlantic this year. This is not the first time that the American Republic, by sudden fiscal departures, has forced us to look to the British family circle as an outlet for our farm products.

Clover Seed Prospects

Production Of Alsike Clover Better In Quality Than Last Year

The Seed Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture estimates that the production of alsike clover seed for 1930 will be better in quality both with respect to colour and purity than last year's crop. Ontario production is not expected to exceed one-third of the 1929 crop, when 70,000 bushels were harvested. The alsike seed market is not overly promising at the present time. Better prospects are reported for red clover seed with practically no carry-over from last year and 1930 acreage about 50 per cent. below normal. An increased acreage of alfalfa being saved for seed is reported.

Manitoba Egg-Laying Contest

White Leghorns led the Manitoba egg-laying contest at the Brandon Experimental Farm at the end of the 37th week. These birds, owned by J. R. Beer, of Brandon, had a total production record of 1,636.2 points and 1,634 eggs. Barred rocks owned by F. E. Foster, of Lena, Man., led for weekly production with 51.2 points and 48 eggs.

The protracted discussions over naval strength on the part of Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan and this country only serve to emphasize the growing respect and good will that mark the relations between Canada and the United States. Nor does this statement imply any lack of friendly relations in the past. But the growing stake which each country has in the other cannot fail to bring them still closer together. Above all, we feel that the people of this country are coming to have a more and more wholesome respect for Canada as it emerges from its pioneering conditions into a great industrial nation. It is not merely her wealth of natural resources which we admire, as anyone must, but the way in which her capable, industrious and enterprising people are developing them.

During the war, Mr. McAdoo, then Secretary of the Treasury, remarked to a high Canadian official that, in his opinion, Canada was the most productive country in the world per capita. Certainly her heritage is rich and vast. It is true that in ten years the United States has invested some $3,500,000,000 in Canada. But Canada has penetrated the United States as well. One of her life-insurance companies is the largest stockholder in at least two of our great corporations and more than $1,000,000,000 of the life insurance in force here is held by Canadian companies. Canada is the largest taker of our exports, ranking ahead of any of the Great European powers, with a total value of nearly $900,000,000, while we, in turn, buy more than $500,000,000 worth of goods from her.

After the war Canada suffered a depression much as we did, and went through several bad-crop years. But these were followed by four or five years of big crops and an impressive development in mining, hydro-electric power and industry generally. Although Canada has only one-twelfth the population of the United States, she is indeed a powerful neighbor, and one whose bargaining ability is extremely great—far out of proportion to her population. One need mention only her control of the raw materials for paper making. Then, too, the Canadians seem to have very real genius in building up financial organizations; their banks and insurance companies attest to that.

Canada's population is sure to increase. Indeed, we are adding to it constantly. There is migration both ways, an interchanging of population on a great scale that can only make for mutual respect and good will. In the case of Canada and the United States, there seems to be a mutual conquest or penetration of one by the other. In this instance, business victories carry peace instead of war or fears of war. Few countries have such opportune associations, and yet one cannot but feel that the extension of these relations into other international fields is to some extent possible.—Saturday Evening Post.

Tenth Fortnightly Crop Report

Threshing is again under way, following a period of unsettled weather over the greater part of the Province, which delayed operations to some extent. Southern districts report threshing 90 per cent completed, with the exception of irrigated areas, where 50 per cent remains to be done. In central and northern parts, threshing delays have been of frequent occurrence, due to rains, and amounts threshed, vary from 5 per cent to 25 per cent.

Cutting of grain for threshing, is completed. In some areas, cutting of green feed is still in progress. This is particularly true of the east central part of the Province, where a good crop of green feed is being cut on fields where the first crop was destroyed by high winds, and drought. The absence of frost, until late in the season, has been a factor in greatly increasing yields of grain and feed in this area over early expectations.

Frost was general on the night of September 18th, but very little damage was reported, due to the advanced state of maturity of the crop.

Threshers' returns indicate that the quality of wheat is high. The yield, according to these returns, will be satisfactory, and will be higher than was anticipated.

Harvest operations commenced in the sugar beet area on September 17th. A good average yield, with high sugar content is reported.

Due to late rains, pasture and feed conditions are generally satisfactory, and livestock are in good condition.

Determination of the Canadian Pacific Railway to maintain for Canada the pride of owning the largest, fastest and finest ocean liner on the Pacific and the company's foresight in providing for needs beyond those of the present in the realm of transportation were lauded at Vancouver recently, at a dinner held aboard the liner Empress of Japan, new 25,000-ton Pacific vessel. The Banff Highland Gathering of 1930 goes down not only as the greatest yet so far as events and entrants are concerned but also for attendances since more than 10,000 spectators were present. There is a record crop of potatoes in Canada this year. It will total 66,500,000 bushels or 46 per cent more than in 1929, according to the latest official estimate. Potatoes are grown in commercial quantities in all the provinces of Canada.

According to a statistical report, if all the wealth in the Dominion of Canada were equally divided it would provide $2,995 for each person. This does not include the value of Canada's undeveloped natural resources. The national wealth is placed at $23,940,000,000, an increase of $1,272,000,000 over the previous year.
